About the speaker

Ransom Stephens, Ph.D., has pursued greatness since he was ten years old and has gotten close a few times. As a physics professor, he discovered a new type of matter and was on the team that discovered the top quark; as a technologist, he led an engineering commando team at a Fortune 500 company whose innovations enabled technologies that are still emerging a decade later. He's the author of three novels and the most amusing and complete book ever written on neuroscience: The Left Brain Speaks The Right Brain Laughs: a look at the neuroscience of innovation & creativity in art, science & life. Ransom has given thousands of speeches across the US, Europe, and Asia and has a unique take on life, the universe, and everything that has convinced thousands of people to pursue their greatest ambitions—and some of these people will still talk to him. www.ransomstephens.com

“I just wanted to thank you. I still think about the things you said during your keynote. Not very many people discuss what rabbits we chase, but instead how to keep up with those rabbits. I'm sure people thank you all the time, but in all sincerity thank you for making such an impression on me. I still think about what you said one year later.” -Robert Simpson, UTA student

“The students loved your presentation! It is not often that our students agree on anything, but this time it has happened. Thank you so much for your time and effort to motivate and encourage. Your presentation is one that the students will remember and recall when they need uplifting.”
-Karen Kesseru, Crossroads High School, Petaluma CA

“A great talk with tons of good suggestions for looking for jobs and having a fulfilling career. Ransom rocks!” -Lee Sawyer, Louisiana Tech
